This week, Reception had a special delivery from Farmer Debs—eggs! We've been learning about incubators and how they replace the role of a hen, as well as exploring the life cycle of a chicken. The children discovered fascinating facts, with Gene sharing, "Chickens have combs," and Finley adding, "Chickens sleep on perches." They have also written fantastic chicken fact files.

A huge well done to Myla, Farhana, and Florence for mastering all their tricky words and landing on the beehive this week—great work, girls!

Kind friends

Amayah and Rawan are such great friends. They always show the core value of kindness to one another. They help each other with their coat buttons and zips. They share resources, and encourage each other. While drawing today, Rawan said to Amayah, "Well done Amayah, that's so good." They have been practising adding features to their pictures and writing their names. Amayah drew her daddy's ears, toes and fingers.
